Patient returns to Team and gets results

Kalvin Engelberg is a very athletic man who excelled at wrestling and baseball. Some time ago, Calvin began to suffer from neuropathy in his right arm. This caused him to depend more and more on his left arm, which eventually developed a painful case of tennis elbow. His neurologist at St Joseph's in Pontiac prescribed physical therapy and referred him to a local therapist.

Kalvin told his neurologist, "No, I want to go to Team Rehab." He had received physical therapy at Team Rehab's Farmington Hills clinic in the past and had been very happy with treatment. Calvin returned to Team Rehab where Danielle Roland, PT, DPT began treating him.

Kalvin liked Danielle's approach because it helped him get better, and then to stay better. "She taught me how to properly use my whole arm" he said, adding: "The name Team Rehab is significant because Team worked as a team, with Danielle as the lead, and the staff working well in support. They were very accommodating in setting up appointments that fit my schedule"

Kalvin was so satisfied with his results and experience at Team Rehab, that he referred his wife and a friend of theirs. Both were happy with their treatment as well.
